

WE GOT AN EDUCATION . . .

. . . ON TRIPS, IN CLASSES, AT WORK

The composing room of the Saginaw News is a fascinating place to learn journalism. Only on a field trip could you thrill to the throbbing of the mighty presses in a modern news plant.

Here's a delicious wind-up for "turnabout" classes enjoyed by home ec girls and ag boys this year. Now MPHS boasts some new and capable cooks and gardeners.

Co-op students and others looking for practical education find it in Mt. Pleasant's shops, offices and other businesses. From tying a bow to typing a letter, it fits us for useful occupations.

"What makes it run?" is answered for enthusiastic students in driver training classes as they lift the hood, share dual controls, and study the rules of the road.

When machines, metal and MPHS students get together, the machine shop hums with highly-specialized activity. Precision counts in a craft involving lathes, shapers, drill presses, and grinders.

Classes with empty seats are the exception as we delve into chemistry, art, or history. In a friendly school, though, we always manage to squeeze one more in but how long can we do it?
